Many Taxicabs in London.
A recent consular report from London throws light on the rapid rate at which the horse-drawn cab is giving place to the public motor car in the streets of the metropolis. According to figures given by the British home secretary, the number of licensed taxicabs on July 1 was 4,079, a decrease of 1,290 in one year; four-wheeled cabs, 3,379, a decrease of 389; motor cabs, 2,394, an increase of 1,886. It will thus be seen that in one year the number of taxicabs has more than doubled.

DR. BEATON HAS BEGUN MINISTRY

NEW MINISTER OF CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH BEGAN WORK YESTERDAY.

DUTIES OF THE PASTOR

And Functions Which He, As Such, Is Expected to Perform, Were Outlined in Sermon Yesterday Morning.

Dr. David Beaton, formerly of Chicago, who has accepted the pastorate of the Congregational church, began his work here yesterday, officiating at both services. In the morning Dr. Beaton delivered a splendid address to the duties of the Protestant minister. The doctor is an excellent speaker and makes all his points clear. Both the morning and evening services were exceptionally well attended.

His subject, yesterday morning was "The Christian Minister and His Message." His talk was very favorably received by the audience.

"At the beginning of my ministry in Janesville," said Dr. Beaton, "it may be helpful to state what are the duties and functions of the Christian minister. The reader of the new testament must have been struck with the number and variety of the passages describing him and his work, and I shall here and now give you the essence of those scriptures. Let me point out, first, that he is not a priest. The Protestant minister at his ordination received no miraculous powers to turn bread into flesh, or water into wine; he has no unedified functions. Any priestly duties, so-called, which he performs, are equally the prerogatives of every Christian between who are kings and priests in their own right and service."

"The Christian minister is primarily an evangelist, a teller of good news, a proclaimer of God's mercy, a preacher of the gospel of the grace of God, through faith in Jesus Christ, our Lord. This is the justification of his office and work. Without such a message he would be merely a lecturer, an educationalist, an entertainer. This is the distinctive feature of his service to the church and the community. It makes him a benefactor, a creator of values, an artist in the moral and spiritual life of the nation."

Then, again, he is a teacher. This is inherent in his evangelical message, in his imitation of his Master, and in the constitution of his mind. His message involves the knowledge of his great laws of life—physical and mental. He has to apply them to the soul, education of the young, and to the moral and spiritual phenomena around him. He has to deal with the great troubles of nature, the scientific facts, and the artistic, civic and moral phenomena of civilization. His evangelical message itself must conform to these facts and his educational methods must be founded on them.

"He is also a prophet of righteousness—not a foreteller of events, but one who speaks for and on behalf of his God, on all public as well as private concerns; one who studies and speaks forth on the moral interests of the social, the civic, the political as well as the personal faith of the prophet. He is not merely a reciter of former creeds, but a maker of new creeds—vital faiths of today which men and women live by and for in the practical life of their homes and business and politics."

"Then he is a pastor, a shepherd, a friend and guide and helper of the faith, and the community who seek his service. He goes in and out of their homes, their shops, their fields, their playgrounds and their polling booths as well as their prayer meetings, not merely as a professional cleric, but as a man among men—one of themselves that he may wisely guide and comfort them. For this ministry has not been committed to angels, but to men of like passions and frailties as the common people. And it is out of the knowledge and experience thus learned that his vital messages spring like the water of life to thirsty souls."

"As to his bishopric in the church over which he is placed there is no need of extended reference. As a congregational minister he is its ex-officio president and bishop, guiding, not ruling, its affairs, except such a purely maternal and financial character as are wisely delegated to his society and its trustees. Any one can see that an officer with such manifold solutions may be executed with varying degrees of efficiency and power. And I desire this morning to point out a few of the qualifying facts and ideals that in my convictions and experience ought to, and do in my eyes, so qualify this office and inspire all its services to mankind."

"First, then, the Christian minister has a universality of interest in human life. It matters not whether he thinks of his gospel preaching, his pastoral visit, or his work of education, or his prophetic service; his essential qualification is breadth and efficiency of interest. The lawyer, the banker, the physician, the business man and the scientist may be narrow specialists and succeed, but for a minister to be narrow and one-sided is a fatal defect—a culpable weakness. And you must not suppose he pretends to be interested in this variety of human work, and pray and thought in order to ingratiate himself in the pretenses of a meddling, silly thing for church purposes. Are you a citizen? So am I, and I was one before I was a minister, and may be one after my ministry is over. Are you a politician? So am I, and I may vote against you for I have my own political opinions and they are not for sale to church or houses. Are you a reader and lover of books, or music, or art? Well, so am I, and I am so because they are a source of solace, pleasure and power to me, myself, and not merely because they furnish me with illustrations for the pulpit, nor because they may help to advise you and your family on those essential to a cultivated taste. Do you like to work with your hands—to make things, to look at machinery, to see things being done? That is my specialty for I carry a trade in my fingers and mechanical interests are second nature. Do you like games and recreation—the fields, the open sky, the sheltering woods, the wild creatures of the field and stream? Well, I like these things so much that I hate to come back from my vacation and if I ever have a difference of opinion with my deacons it will very likely be on this very matter. I have one most marked sign of the apostolic succession. I am a zealous fisherman. As yet, I have ever gotten very near the heart of life and the tenderness of God it has been when I have seen him alone in those solitary places where nature ministers to the soul. Are you married? Well, so am I, and I am equally ready with advice or sympathy, as your case may call for. Do not think I am facetious at the expense of a serious theme; if you do, that shows you have not been reading my testament lately. Saint Paul considers marriage one of the most essential qualifications for a Christian minister. He told Timothy, he must be the husband of one wife—one was enough—but he meant that for the discipline, the insight into those deep, eternal truths of nature, of science and love, and forbearance, of solace and rest, which really has made the heart of man human, for what sort of society would have existed, what sort of civilization would come out of an order of celibates? The Christian apostle was no faddist, no fanatic, no maligner of God's physical laws. He was the teacher of truth which lies at the bottom of the physical as well as the spiritual life. He wanted the Christian minister to be a whole man—a well-rounded, disciplined man—a man of normal moral and social life, and the only way for such is the way of the home, the little child, the ministry of mutual love and sympathy in the rearing of a family."

"I do not look at men and read their worth in the kingdom of God from the viewpoint of their race, their creed, or their political affiliations. Are you a republican? Well, I will not overcommune you on that account. Are you a prohibitionist? Well, you are a free citizen, and I do not think any less of you for your politics. Are you a democrat? How it is possible we may differ, and I may try to a better view of the constitution, but I won't think any less of your Christianity. Are you a Methodist, a Presbyterian or Baptist, or Unitarian, or even Congregationalist—Jew, Catholic or Agnostic? Well, neither of those creeds will separate you from my sympathy, nor diminish my respect for your manhood if they are held by you with sincere conviction and they are adorned with the fruits of an honorable and useful life. I may try to change your beliefs, and I will try as hard as I can in the fair field of debate or instruction to win men to the rational and spiritual conception of God and man that I earnestly hold; but in doing this I am asking no favor—I won't give, and it will be neither a proselytizer nor a bigot. And if you cannot believe with me I shall ever feel for you the love of a brother-man, and the sympathy of a Christian minister. My faith in Christ as the universal savior, the leader and teacher of men is not strengthened by a spirit of intolerance of other men's faiths or no-faiths, but is based upon the spirit of interest and compassion for the race of mankind."

"Nor is this universality of interest and toleration of spirit to be confused with indifference to the fundamental truths of Christianity. These I hold with a sincere conviction, and this quality of conviction is the other great mark of my ministry. My disposition as a Scotchman, is highly argumentative. I have a philosophy of life and nature. My religious convictions agree with that philosophy or I would not hold them. "I am not indifferent to certain intellectual tendencies because I do not mathematize them. I view with extreme concern some of the crazy fads and religious beliefs of the present day which are commonly associated with mental healing. I am also amazed at the apparent indifference of the free American citizen concerning his or her own intellectual freedom and independence and the careless way they are willing to subject their souls to dictators—male and female. I am concerned for that spiritual freedom which is the finest flower of our centuries of moral discipline and political struggle. I am ashamed to see free souls yield their right of thinking to any dictator of the mind. But if I shall combat these things, then heretofore it will be with the weapons of reason and fact, and the influence of men who respect his neighbor's rights and know his own limitations. Yet I will speak freely of systems and forcefully show up their defects, for a Christian minister without convictions and the courage to express them is a sword of bath, a sounding brass and a clanging cymbal. If I seem to dogmatize it is not as a dictator of the mind, but as a teacher who believes with all his intellect and heart the truths which he proclaims. And last of all I have some ideals. They are not dreams, nor fancies, nor utopias, but spiritual conceptions of man and his pursuits and aspirations, his past achievements and the promises that they foretell. I have ideals of what God is and would become in the spirit of man; and these ideals, though not always expressed, will always be the melody which runs through the symphony of my ministry. They will be the themes inspiring the poem of our united spiritual life as it finds expression in our homes, our places of play and business and our hours of devotion. For through all our life it is not we that live but Christ that liveth in us."

"In this spirit of a large tolerance, of a deep sympathy and of a strong conviction of the value of truth and the possibilities of achievement in the human soul, when enlightened and guided by the spirit of God I desire to minister among you as a church and the community in which our lot is cast."

PORTABLE WARDROBES

Easily Put Up and Cover Protects Clothing From Dust.

At this season particularly people will appreciate the value of the portable wardrobe designed by an Illinois man. Returning from vacations spent in two-hour rooms, with its drawers, the advantage of the invention here presented seems large. In the first place, there is a grooved bracket, with hooks by which it may be quickly screwed fast to the well. A shelf, hinged to the bracket, fits into the groove and along the bracket under the shelf, and on the bottom of the shelf are rows of hooks on which to hang clothing. Depending from the shelf and enclosing the clothing is a large box which effectively protects the garments from the dust and other dirt that is bound to accumulate. For persons who travel to any extent or who summer in resorts where room is at a premium, one of these portable wardrobes will be found invaluable. When folded for carrying they occupy very little space in the trunk.

When asked about it he simply said in his funny broken English: "Me no think—have good time—like children."

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Catherine Noonan.
Word was received yesterday from Muscatine, Iowa, of the death of Mrs. Catherine Noonan, which occurred there yesterday morning at 9:15 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mary McCulloch. Mrs. Noonan was eighty-three years of age and was an old resident of Rock county. She was born in County Clare, Ireland, and came to Wisconsin March 15, 1866, making her home in Portville, which until three weeks ago when she went to her daughter's home, has been her permanent residence. Two children are left to mourn her loss—Mrs. McCulloch of Iowa and William Noonan of 1202 Vista street north of this city. Eight grandsons and two granddaughters also survive her.

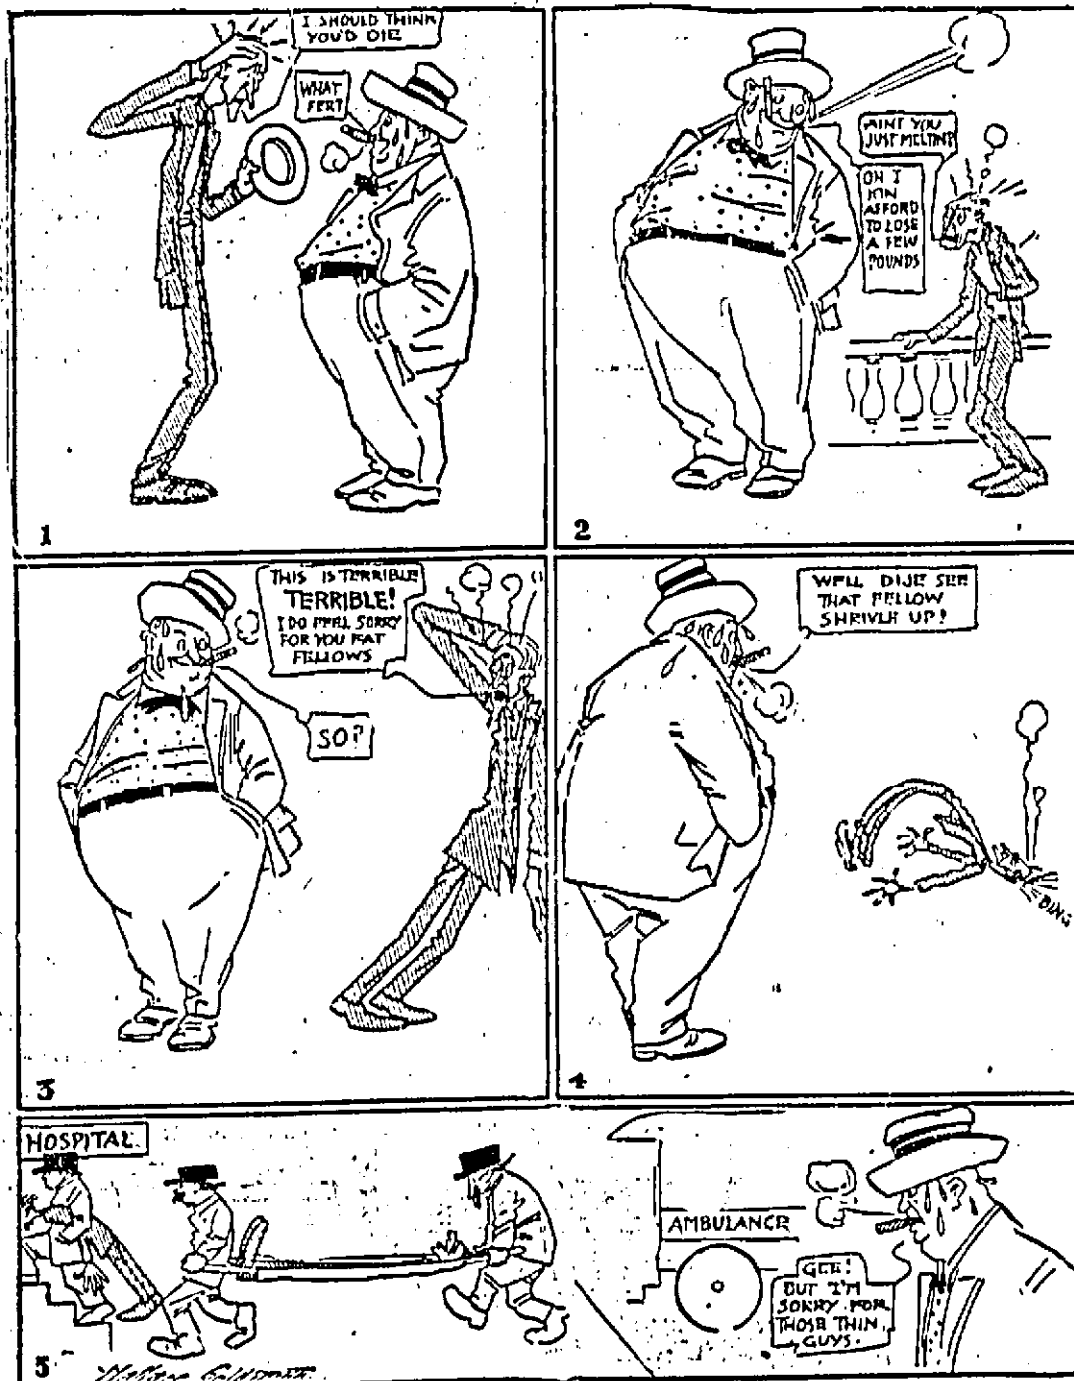

The remains were brought to this city today arriving at ten o'clock, and were immediately taken to the home of her son here.

The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at nine o'clock from St. Mary's church.

Charles E. Robinson.
Evansville, Nov. 22.—At his home in this city about six o'clock Saturday morning, Nov. 20, Charles E. Robinson passed to the great beyond at the age of sixty-nine years. Mr. Robinson had been in failing health for several months, but had been able to be up and around until Friday and the announcement of his death Saturday morning was a most painful shock to the people of Evansville, for practically no one knew that his condition was at all serious. He was a man of gentle disposition and kindly heart, and enjoyed the respect and confidence of all who knew him. He was born in Maine, May 17, 1840, and when but a boy came west with his parents and settled in Wisconsin. After a few years the family went to Iowa and there on September 12, 1869, he was united in marriage to Miss Alice Waters. After a short residence in that state he returned to Wisconsin and for more than thirty years has lived in or near Evansville. His wife and only son, LeRoy Robinson, are the surviving relatives. The funeral services were held from the Methodist church at half-past two o'clock Sunday afternoon, Nov. 21, W. North officiating. Interment was made in Maple Hill cemetery and the pallbearers were Bert Dunn, Leo Campbell, Charles Becker, Harry Lee, L. A. Baldwin and David Patchen.

"Rather. He wants to pay me with it."

NATURE HAD DONE THAT WORK

Visitor—There's nothing in here. You can't make a monkey of me.
Guard—I know it; it's too late, but you won't have to sue nature for breach of contract on that score.

MAJOR OR MINOR.

Mr. Lunnon—I suppose I may address you as major, sir? Every man in these southern states seems to be a colonel or a major.
Texas Bill—I'm no major; I'm a miner.

"Absence of occupation is not rest"—not by a mile, if you have creditors or obligations of any kind. If you watch the want ads you will soon learn that you are wanted.

INDIGESTION, HEARTBURN, HEADACHE AND GAS ON STOMACH WILL VANISH

A little Diapiesin makes your out-of-order stomach feel fine in five minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food or have a feeling of Dizziness, Heartburn, Flatness, Nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache—this is indigestion.

A full case of Pope's Diapiesin costs only 50 cents and will thoroughly cure your out-of-order stomach, and leave sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on these 50-cent cases, then you will understand why Dyspeptic trouble of all kinds must go, and why they usually relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. Diapiesin is harmless and tastes like candy, though each dose contains power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for Bilelessness or Constipation.

This city will have many Diapiesin cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be cranks about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever try a little for Indigestion or Gas or any other Stomach misery. Get some now, this minute, and forever rid yourself of Stomach Trouble and Indigestion.

Elbert Hubbard Wisely Says:

"To speak well, or sing well, you must have good teeth. The teeth are organs of speech—auxiliary organs at least."

"Seldom does a man with a tooth-ache make good in anything."

A sensitive tooth will worry anybody. You can't look well, feel well or think well until your teeth are properly cared for.

There are cavities that you aren't aware of that need attention. Don't wait for pain to compel you to see me. Come of your own accord.

An examination and my honest opinion without charge.

I extract teeth painlessly.

NEW LUMBER CO. BEING ORGANIZED

JANESVILLE MEN INTERESTED IN BIG DEAL IN OREGON STATE.

MUCH MONEY IN TIMBER LAND

Over Half Million Will Have Been Invested in West in Past Few Years.

Within the next few days another lumber company will have been organized in Janesville to take over some 340,000,000 feet of standing timber in Oregon state, located in Lincoln county, within seventy miles of Portland. This gigantic deal involves a capitalization of nearly four hundred thousand dollars and a goodly portion of this stock will be held by Janesville men, who in the past few years have invested heavily in western timber lands.

Four years ago the Forks Logging Co. was organized with a capital stock of $100,000. James Harris being president. Recently this company purchased 27,000,000 more feet of standing timber to add to their 150,000,000 they had originally and their mill has been working for some years transforming the huge trees of Washington into timber.

Later the same enterprising investors Co. was organized with a capital stock of $200,000 and purchased 6,500 acres of land having 325,000,000 feet of standing timber on it and located in British Columbia. This last purchase has not been out as yet and it is expected that the increased value of stumpage will more than double the investment within a few years. James Harris is president of this company, Frank R. Donaldson vice president, and Geo. E. King is secretary.

SERVICES FOR VERNE MERRILL AT CHURCH

Obsequies Were Conducted This Morning From Presbyterian Church by Rev. Laughlin.

The Presbyterian church was nearly filled this morning with the relatives, friends and schoolmates of Verne Merrill, who gathered there at half past ten o'clock to pay the last respects to his memory. From the high school nearly two hundred were present, including the members of the senior class, several of the faculty, the football team and personal friends. The intermediate class of the Y. M. C. A. attended in a body. The flowers were extremely beautiful and there was a profusion of various sprays and designs. Rev. J. W. Laughlin conducted the services, delivering a splendid funeral address, eulogizing the virtues of the young man and consoling the bereaved relatives and friends. The pall-bearers were some of the most intimate friends: F. E. Birch, Fred Jensen, Francis Green, John Brown, Ellsworth Strang, and Russell Wilkinson. On account of the bad condition of the roads which prevented the use of the funeral home, the body was taken to the church over night and will be shipped to Evansville tomorrow morning.

RAN CANDY STORE WITHOUT LICENSE

S. Nimmer, Syrian Proprietor of Opera-house Stand, Appeared in Municipal Court This Morning.

S. Nimmer, proprietor of the candy stand adjoining the Myers theatre entrance, was haled into municipal court this morning on complaint of State Inspector C. J. Kremer to answer to a complaint for willfully and unlawfully engaging in the operation of a confectionery store without a license. It appears that the law requiring licenses for this sort of business has been in force for two years past and was passed in order to enable the pure food commission to more effectively enforce the observance of sanitary and proper precautions in the manufacture of sweetmeats. Mr. Nimmer, who is a Syrian and does not understand English very well, was warned by mill and word several times to file his application for a license, for which no charge is made, and also advised that before such permit could be granted an offending closet would have to be removed from the floor where the wares were exposed to view and placed in the basement. Through an interpreter he informed the court that he had not understood clearly about the necessity of applying promptly for a license but had made repeated efforts to persuade his landlord to have the sewer connections changed. As a matter of fact the alterations were now being made, Judge Filshie had to impose the minimum fine of $20 and costs amounting to $2.70, in lieu of recommendation of Mr. Kremer and recommendation of Mr. Filshie the fine will be remitted if, at the end of one week's time, all the requirements have been complied with. The case was adjourned until next Monday.

To get some medicine for the girl, Dr. James Mills was immediately summoned to attend to the burns and the young lady is as comfortable now as could be expected.

DEVELOPMENT OF THE CHILD WAS TOPIC OF H. C. BUELL

Superintendent of Schools Spoke on Interesting Subject at Men's Meeting Yesterday.

Yesterday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. building Prof. H. C. Buell gave an interesting address before the men's meeting. In his talk Mr. Buell spoke of the development of the individual, "Childhood," he divided into three cycles—the first from one to seven years, the second from seven to fourteen years, and the third from fourteen to twenty-one years. The first period, Professor Buell named as the time of physical development when all was done to start the child's physical growth and progress. It from becoming stunted. The second is the time of mental development when the child is sent to school to study that it may become a dullard. If the child does not want to learn from books, the law steps in and force is used if necessary. The third period is the one most neglected, that between the ages of fourteen and twenty-one when the moral sense is developed and the child really begins to differentiate between right and wrong. Men and women, however, neglect their duty at this time and do not try to develop the child's morals, as they do their physical nature and their brain.

One advantage at least is preserved to the poet, which is that, as he foretold, the trees shed their blossoms on him twice a year; in fruit trees in the garden are carried to his grave."—Travel and Exploration.

Electricity Known of Old.

A writer in the Elektrotechnische Anzeiger often many incidents to show that electricity was not unknown to the ancients, and that George Iher's suggestion in a novel that the Egyptians made use of lightning conductors was well founded. Instruments much like the modern heliograph were also used, the writer says, by priests, as a means of communication between temples. There can be no doubt, he says, as to the temple having been protected by lightning rods. The Biblical description shows that the roof was provided with metallic points held aloft by columns and that these ending in chains terminated in great water tanks. He adds: "All of which is vouched for in the first book of Kings and the second book of Chronicles."

Substantial Proof.

The owner of a good library solemnly warned a friend against the practice of lending books. To punctuate his advice he showed his friend the well-stocked shelves. "There," said he, "every one of those books was lent me!"

Remarkable Guessing.

Mr. Richard Lybus of the Old Lodge, Derby, England, at the local agricultural show in 1906, guessed the exact weight of a live bullock—354 pounds. In 1907 his estimate was only one pound out, and this year he was within one and a half pounds of the correct weight.

BANISHMENT DARES

ROYAL FEUD.
The above photograph shows the Duke of Aosta on the right, Katherine Elkins on the left, and the king of Italy below.

Lisbon.—A royal feud involving the beautiful Katherine Elkins, the rich American girl whose name has been linked so often to that of the Duke of Aosta, is being discussed all over the city today. The story became public with the arrival of the Duchess of Aosta, who came to Lisbon to bid farewell to her sister, the mother of the King of Portugal. The story will go by way to Madrid to Cadix, and then strike across to the mouth of the Congo.

It is announced that every effort has been made and is being made to dissuade her from risking her life in hunting big game and in plunging into African wilds, but that her passion for hunting and exploring is so great that all pleas fall on deaf ears.

However there is another story. Princess Helene of Orleans, sister of the French pretender and wife of the duke of Aosta a haughty woman has been made thoroughly miserable by the thwarting of her ambition to cut an important figure in Italy. She committed a serious error when she was recently referred to Queen Helena on the latter's mounting throne as "my cousin the shepherdess" referring to the queen coming from Montenegro. Naturally the queen resented this and made her resentment felt.

Afterwards the duchess fell out with her husband and for some time they have been living practically apart. More recently the duchess took sides violently against Miss Katherine Elkins when the duke of the Abruzzi asked the royal family to accept the American girl as his royal bride. The duchess declared vehemently:

"Nothing will ever induce me to accept this American woman as my step-daughter."

The duchess' departure for a long sojourn on another continent renders the report that the duke of the Abruzzi's cause is progressing favorably in the Italian court.

Abruzzi is now at Subotaggorre, stopping at the Hotel des Thermes and taking the baths. He is accompanied by his close friend Count Negrotti who has been his constant companion since the beginning of the Elkins romance. The duke is living very quietly and democratically. He mingles with the hotel guests freely and occasionally takes parties on automobile excursions.

Next month he will go to Rome to attend another family council. It is believed by many that afterwards formal announcement will be made of his betrothal to Miss Elkins and that marriage will follow ere long.

The action of the emperor of Austria-Hungary in acknowledging Andri Stewart's alliance with Prince Miguel of Braganza established a precedent which, it is argued the Italian royal family cannot refuse to recognize.

HANDY PEA-SHELLER

Separates Peas From Pods, Throwing Them in Separate Places.

A little machine that will be highly appreciated in the kitchen is the pea-sheller invented by a Utah man. This handy little device will shell a peck of peas in the time it would take the cook to shell a couple of dozen by hand. It consists of a hopperlike arrangement clamped to the table by an iron upright. Above the hopper a pair of roller bearings studded with blunt, pyramidal teeth are in close relation. A handle turns these rollers, while the mouth of the hopper opens over the table, where a dish can be placed beneath it. The pods are inserted between the rollers and forepost. As the rollers are turned the teeth engage the different shells of the pods and rip them open, allowing the peas to roll down into the bowl. The shells are then tossed out the other side of the "winger." Of course, the two rollers are not close enough together to crush the peas, but just close enough to engage the pods.

GREAT HAYR OF TIME.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

"W HY don't you begin today and always say them?"—those kind little words of appreciation that you quite infrequently think but very seldom get round to saying? I wrote once on a time.

And tonight I want to add, "Why don't you begin today and refrain from saying them? those cruelly kind little words of false encouragement or unmerited praise that you don't ever really think but so often say?"

Unjust blame is very hard to bear but unjust praise probably does infinitely more harm in the world.

A woman who can barely get engagements enough as a concert player to keep body and soul together, was talking to me the other day.

"I know I'm a failure," she said, "but it isn't wholly my fault."
"My friends are a good deal to blame. You see when I was a young girl and used to play at my friends' houses and at recitals everybody told me that I was a wonderful player, that I must go in for concert work, that I'd be a female Paderewski, and all that until my head was completely turned."

"I am practically sure that I might have been a first-rate music teacher. Instead, thanks to my friends, I'm a fourth-rate concert player struggling to earn enough for a half-bedroom existence."

Perhaps the lady shifted the blame of her mistake too much onto other people, but I don't doubt she had good grounds for her complaint.

Many a woman looks sadly back on her past and for hundreds of dollars and years of life spent in vain justly lays the blame on the false praises of such people.

"You are surely born for the stage."
"Anyone with a voice like that ought to study for grand opera."

"There is no doubt about it—you ought not to waste yourself on teaching. Writing is certainly your vocation," they say.

And all the time they merely mean—
"You did well in the amateur play."
"You sang very well."

"That is a pretty good poem or essay for a college girl."

Praise like that is not gracious. It is cruel and the people who continually give it are either very thoughtless or wicked—and I don't know as there is a great deal of difference.

Surely you wouldn't deliberately misdirect anyone that you met on the street, would you?

Then why, by your false encouragement deliberately misdirect those you meet on the highway of life?

FRED BAKER AND BRIDE GREETED

By an Improved Brass Band and Yells from Michigan University Football Team at Local Depot Last Night.

Noble greetings from Janesville awaited Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Baker, on route from Madison to Chicago, when their train pulled in, fully one hour late, at the C. & N. W. station about 7:40 last evening. It appeared that their advent had been heralded over the telephone wire, and acting promptly on the information, Al Knoff, George Hatch, Llan A. Williams, Verne Murdoch, William Kilmann, and other instrumentalists, added and abetted by such vocalists as Dr. Walter D. Merritt and Dr. G. C. Wauke, proceeded at once to the band room and proceeded to organize something guaranteed to impinge upon the Sabbath calm like the symphony of a boiler factory working overtime, plus the sweet, seductive strains of home-made steam whistles, and the soft overtones of a first-class, energetic and undimmed steam fog siren. And when the victorious University of Michigan football team, homeward bound from its Minnesota conquest and mistaking the 30-111 rendition of the Lohengrin wedding march for Louis Ells's "Hail to the Conquering Heroes," sprang into action and quickly perceiving the real trend of the play joined in the general uproar with a "Rah, Rah, Rah, Bride!" utter "Groom!" and a U. of M. locomotive yell that shook the depot, the 300 or more spectators who had been attracted to the scene and the passengers in the other coaches just naturally joined in the din and did what they could to make it memorable.

After the improvised band had played "A Hot Time" and both dis-coursed and sung "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now," "He Is a Happy, Happy Married Man," and other choice ones, the bass-drummer led the way into the car and grasped the shrieking groom by the hand. Introductions and greetings followed and likewise a shower of Canadian rice—a species of doubtful looking black cereal which had been collected from some quarter for the emergency.

Miss Bonnah Ott and Fred J. Baker were wedded at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. J. M. Brown, 2007 Elm Park boulevard, Madison, at half-past two o'clock Sunday afternoon. The Rev. Mr. Goodenough officiating. The bride was attended by Miss Miller of Madison and the groom by Harry McNamara of Janesville. Only a few relatives and immediate friends of the contracting parties witnessed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Baker, parents of the groom, Mrs. Harry McNamara, and Alex. Russell were the other Janesville guests. Following an elaborate wedding supper, the happy couple started on their brief honeymoon trip. They will probably reach Janesville by Thanksgiving Day. Until spring, when they expect to go to housekeeping, they will make their home at the J. P. Baker residence.

Of Bleu De Nuit Cloth.

A pretty toilet, but whose severity of cut would necessitate its being worn by a woman of smart appearance, is the gown of blue de nuit cloth. The lines are those of the princess, though a slight break is given by the outline of the upper portion, which gives the effect of a bolero. There is, however, no fullness, no break in the line of the gown, thus giving a result extremely smart. The neck cut square is piped with liberty and filled with plastron and collar of lace, and one the left are three small bows of liberty held by tiny buckles. The fitted cuff which finishes the sleeve is trimmed by small buttons of the cloth.

does not care for the new palace, but prefers the house where she is now living in Paris.

Still more remarkable is the case of Mrs. John Jacob Astor. Her husband had a very magnificent house in the French style at No. 840 Fifth avenue and it was a twin with the house of his mother, the famous society leader, at No. 842 Fifth avenue. When Mrs. Astor died last winter Col. John Jacob Astor started to have the two houses thrown into one. Together they formed probably the largest house in New York and possessed an unrivaled series of reception rooms. Colonel Astor spent $200,000 on the alterations alone. Obviously these changes were designed for the benefit of his wife to assist in establishing her as the leader of society. But the beautiful Mrs. John Jacob Astor has never occupied the greatest house in New York. She has been living in one room in the house of a friend, Mrs. Benjamin S. Gulness in Washington Square, and has been granted a divorce.

Secret of Literature.

Literature is the expression of estasy; it is the discovery that nothing is common or unclean; it is the revelation of the latent magic and wonder which underlie all things; which, indeed, cause things to be! To the uninitiated and unenlightened eye life

seems a pattern of dull and opaque surfaces; art beholds all things as shining, translucent, marvellous.—

REAL MEANING OF

A THANKSGIVING

REV. T. D. WILLIAMS PREACHES
STRONG SERMON.

GOD'S HAND ALWAYS SEEN

Pre-Thanksgiving Sermon at the Carroll Methodist Church Last

Evening.

"God's Hand in Our History and Daily Providence," was the subject of a pre-Thanksgiving sermon by Rev. T.

D. Williams at the Carroll Memorial church last night. In his address, the pastor endeavored to present the real meaning and significance of Thanksgiving Day as a national institution, showing how the hand of God has directed the destinies of this great country to its eternal glory and why it is fitting that the whole country should unite in giving thanks for its guidance on at least one day in the year.

In addition to the national idea,
Rev. Williams endeavored to bring home the fact that while it is emphatically right that such a day should be observed, it is also true that the great Father is guiding with as great care the less momentous issues of every one of his children's lives and that for the sake of guidance and protection, every one should make thanksgiving a day of Thanksgiving.

The text for the sermon was the thirty-fourth verse of the sixteenth

chapter of the first book of Chronicles: "O give thanks unto the Lord;

for He is good; for His mercy endu-reth forever." He said in part:

"After the ark had been taken back to the city after its long wanderings,

David held a thanksgiving service,
and a part of the anthem was the text of the evening: "O give thanks unto the Lord; for He is good; for His mercy endureth forever." Our president has set aside next Thursday as a day of thanksgiving. He has called upon the people of this country

to abandon the pursuit of their usual trades and occupations and to turn their feet to thanksgiving to praise and pray. If there is any person upon this earth who should feel bound to give thanks, it is the person living under this flag, the person enjoying the inestimable privileges of this country. God's hand has been shown in the history of this land, in the making of its laws, in the institution and preservation of its liberties and it is to Him every inhabitant of this broad land should turn on Thanksgiving Day

in prayer and praise.

After thus introducing his subject
and stating it in a general way, Rev.

Williams proceeded to develop his central idea by bringing forward specific instances of the evidence of God's hand in shaping the destinies of this country. In the different crises of the nation's development, when the salvation of the whole people rested

in the hands of practically one man, his hand is plainly seen. In every instance, when the nation needed a strong, upright and capable leader, the man chosen lived in the "four of God."

"Was it by chance or accident that Columbus was led to the new world?

Was it through any earthly qualities that he pursued his object in spite of ridicule and discouragement? God led Columbus to the great western hemisphere when the hour had struck for the beginning of His purpose.

Columbus was a godly man and his first act upon landing after his perilous voyage was to fall on his knees and render thanks. We cannot say that the Lord told the great navigator to "go and seek it," but rather, "to come,"

for the land was there and he before the world and make it the theatre for great deeds and worthy achievements."

Showing in this way that the discovery of America was part of God's all-embracing plans, and that He brought about their accomplishment

through His own chosen instruments, the pastor went on to show that in every important event in this country's history, the same rule holds.

"When God wishes to accomplish anything in this world, He calls upon praying men to do it."

Rev. Williams then went on to state that not only did a "praying

man" discover America, but "praying men" the puritans—had a great influence in shaping its destinies. Their religious convictions are well known,

"they left their homes in England in order to escape persecution. They would not land on Sunday. Their first act was to pray and bury their dead,

and it was Governor Bradford who instituted what might be called the first Thanksgiving Day in this country."

"In 1776, when God decided that the time had come to make the colonies

independent, He chose a "praying man," George Washington, to lead them to liberty and to guide their first wavering steps in the paths of self-government. In the words of one of the early pioneers who found Washington on his knees in prayer: "If there is any man to whom God will listen, it is our Washington. Our country is secure in his hands."

"Once had the privilege of sitting in the Washington now in Alexandria,

and while there, this thought came forcibly to my mind. The streams of influence in this country, had their fountain in prayer."

Following up his main idea, the pastor showed that during the terrible

war of the rebellion, Abraham Lincoln,
who stands head and shoulders above

the men of his time, was in his knees during those trying hours when the armies of the north and south were fighting. Later in history, McKinley, a "praying man," headed the United States when liberty was given to an oppressed and down-trodden people in the West Indies. In these crucial moments "God gave us these men."

Turning from the national aspects of God's guidance, Rev. Williams

brought out the evidence in the daily providence of His people. According to the pastor, there is danger that in accepting God's continual guidance, people will be prone to take them as a matter of course and neglect acknowledging them, as in the case of the ten lepers, only one of whom gave thanks. They are not absorbed in the gift that they forget the giver

and like Adam, place the foliage between themselves and God. Everything, even the wonders of nature, are taken for granted. Were the stars to appear but once every hundred years,

people would await their coming and worship them, but now they are hardly given a thought. The practice of giving thanks for some extraordinary manifestation, such as exemplified by the Ladies' Foreign Missionary society

in making a small gift after escaping some accident or peril without serious consequences, is wrong. Thanks should be rendered for every day

that does not bring accident or misfortune.

"When it is considered that man is absolutely dependent on the Lord for everything that concerns his immortal welfare, that he cannot make a single ray of sunlight, nor cause a single drop of rain to fall or make a leaf of bread, "The Lord makes all these things and His people are dependent upon Him for everything. Man should be like a child, and should be astonished at His infinite variety. In no succeeding day does He repeat Himself in His works. He gives new rays of sunlight; there are no two of His millions of people who are exactly alike. There are no two ideas that are exactly similar, no two faces, or sermons, or acts, or movements. It has often been said that there is nothing new under the sun and that history repeats itself but a careful analysis shows us that these statements do not hold. What is history? It is a record of change in human events. Truth is ever changing; character is ever changing. People change from day to day.

"Kingdoms may rise and fall as they have in the past, but if our great country will set up its barriers in the name of God and in accordance with

His laws, two hundred or even five hundred years from now it will still be increasing in power and glory and not crumbling into dust like the ancient kingdoms of the world who forgot God. A look into the comforts of the past will disclose the doom of those nations who forgot God.

"Blessed is the nation whose trust is in God and the people who have chosen as His own inheritance. God is moving along the sons of men. Our next Thanksgiving Day may our knees precede the earth and our prayers

ascend to Him, the Author of all goodness. And in the succeeding years may our nation draw nearer and nearer to the throne of God."

JUDGE LANGE'S PAPER AT MEN'S CLUB OF THE CONGREGA-

TIONAL CHURCH FRIDAY
EVENING.

WHAT MIGHT BE EXPECTED

Is the Commission System as Compared with the Present System a Moral and Political Reform?

That the commission form of government of cities is one of the interesting topics for discussion just at this time is evidenced by the talk that has been aroused by the discussion at the Men's Club meeting at the Congregational church last Friday evening. Judge Lange, who gave a most interesting paper on the subject,

has given the Gazette permission to print his talk in full and it is as follows:

"This question furnishes a fine
chance for argument if nothing more,

and if what I say helps to awaken discussion and interest I shall have achieved at least part of my purpose.

There are a great many people who believe that any departure from time-honored customs and old established

usages must necessarily be a failure or a fraud, and they of course will unhesitatingly condemn the commission system. The petty politician or ward boss who sees his easy money gone and even his very easy existence

threatened by the commission system will tell you in his confidential way

that there is altogether too much reform nowadays and that the trouble with our cities is too much reform and not enough. (And he will say it in much coarser language than I have used.)

But every fair-minded man will admit that any system, commission or otherwise, which will reduce the administration of municipal affairs to a more businesslike basis will be, as compared with our present system, not only a moral and political reform but also a blessing to the civic world in general which will solve most of the trouble and problems which confront our cities today. Experience has already proved beyond a doubt that the commission system does put city government on a more practical business basis than our present system.

"I do not believe in reform for reform's sake, but when I pick up the morning paper day after day and read of some new exposure of graft and vices and crime in our leading cities,

I am almost ready to believe that any change would necessarily be an improvement on our present system because in order to bring about a change

there would have to be an awakening of public spirit and interest, and with the awakening of proper public spirit and interest any system would be a success. I believe that even under the present system it is possible to have an efficient and economical municipal administration, but I also believe that it would be mighty hard to find. The trouble is not so much with our present system as with the obnoxious customs and vicious practices which have grown out of it, and without public interest the same customs and practices would, to some extent, accompany any system.

"I believe that the commission system would be a moral and political reform for many reasons, and to help

discussion I will name a few which suggest themselves to me.

responsibility which is the natural re-

COL. ASTOR'S YACHT
IS REPORTED SAFE

Word from Steamer Says Pleasure Boat Was at San Juan November 15.

Willemstad, Curacao, Nov. 22.—The Red D steamer Caracass reports having seen Col. John Jacob Astor's yacht Nourmahal in the San Juan harbor on November 15. The captain said the boat bore no evidence of having suffered in the Jamaican hurricane.

The Caracass reports that the Nourmahal arrived at San Juan on November 14 and that she was still there on the fifteenth, safely anchored inside the harbor.

Tampa, Fla., Nov. 22.—At 12:30 this morning wireless communication with Guantanamo was established here and a partial confirmation of the safety of the Nourmahal at San Juan was secured. The wireless station at that point reported having heard a message to the effect that the Nourmahal was safe in port. Efforts to raise San Juan have been unsuccessful.

EXPERTS IN HEREDITY TO MEET
Probers of Nature's Laws Will Assemble in Omaha.

Omaha, Nov. 22.—One thousand men who have given the world in a few years more knowledge of heredity than all the libraries contained before the twentieth century, scientists from the United States, Canada, Hawaii, South Africa and the South American republics, will participate in the annual meeting of the American Breeders' association which opens in Omaha, December 8, and continues four days.

A dozen years ago the subject of heredity was not usually taught in colleges, because not enough was known of the subject to justify teaching it. Divided into more than a score of committees, the leaders of the American Breeders' association have been making a sweeping investigation of the laws of nature as applied to heredity. While one committee is investigating fish breeding, another experiments with roses; still another committee of scientists seeks information on breeding fur-bearing animals that they might be improved, while David Starr Jordan heads a committee on eugenics to investigate and report on heredity in the human race.

BIG FAMILIES ARE A MENACE
Professor Points Out Danger of Exceeding Food Supply.
Philadelphia, Nov. 22.—"Limit the number of children in each family and limit the immigration to the United States or else there is a grave danger of the population exceeding the available food supply," is the advice of Scott Noaring, instructor in economics at the Wharton school of finance and commerce of the University of Pennsylvania.

Speaking before the Hebrew Literature society on "Race Suicide," Prof. Noaring ridiculed ex-President Roosevelt's pet theory of the advisability of big families, declaring that the antirace suicide sentiment was responsible for the increased cost of living expenses. Women's sphere in life was given a new definition, he declared, that woman's function was not to bear children, but to rear a few children in the elements of future good citizenship. That a mother who spends the greater part of her life in bearing children is not fitted physically or mentally to bring them up was another of his statements.

Former Legislator in Jail.
Seattle, Wash., Nov. 22.—Charged with conducting a land lottery as secretary and manager of the Sound Pacific Land Company, L. B. Rader, member of the legislature from 1894 until 1898, has been arrested. It is alleged the company flooded the western half of the state with circulars announcing a drawing by which 1,500 acres of land of the Chehalis valley, near Elmer, was to be placed on the market.

Taft Aids Negroes' Schools.
Hampton, Va., Nov. 22.—President Taft took up his duties as a member of the board of trustees of Hampton Normal and Agricultural Institute when he attended a meeting of the board at the office of President Folsom, and later delivered an address in which he lauded the work that industrial institutions like Hampton and Tuskegee are accomplishing for the colored people of the south.

Denies Woman Was Suicide.
Toledo, O., Nov. 22.—Nellie R. Harris, whom Mrs. L. F. McFarland, the divorced wife of former tax inspector, W. H. McFarland of Toledo, found shot through the head at Mrs. McFarland's home at Wapakoneta, O., on October 23, did not die a suicide, according to the verdict of Coroner F. C. Hunter. The verdict does not attempt to fix responsibility for Miss Harris' death.

Demand Probe of Mine Horror.
Chicago, Nov. 22.—Resolutions were adopted at a meeting of the Chicago Federation of Labor demanding of Gov. Deneen that a thorough investigation be made as to the causes of the recent disaster at Cherry, and that an employers' liability law be enacted at the next meeting of the state legislature.

Novelist Critically Ill.
Paris, Nov. 22.—Bjornstjerne Bjornson, the Norwegian novelist, who is suffering from arterio sclerosis, but who has been unable to take treatment here, is gradually growing weaker.

DAILY DIET HINTS
By DR. T. J. ALLEN
Food Specialist.

TWO MEALS DAILY.
The two-meal plan is growing in favor as the truth is more generally appreciated that we eat, generally speaking, far too much. The digestive organs need rest, more than that allowed between supper and the usual breakfast hour. Digestion, which, properly speaking, includes elimination, is completed only when the food is reduced to its final elements, part absorbed into the blood and part eliminated. This requires about twelve hours, and when the vitality available for digestion can be devoted entirely to one meal at a time, the process is better performed. It is observed that while in fasting elimination is a difficult problem after the second or third day, within that time the freedom and extent of elimination is usually surprising. There are few cases in which a fast of a day or two is not beneficial, whatever objection there may be to a protracted fast. Even if as much food be taken when two meals only are eaten there is a gain in physiological economy evidenced by better working capacity and better health.

"Mer. Oh, I shall never marry!"
"It doesn't follow because I have been unfortunate that you should be," said Emma. "It is easy to conceive of perfect happiness with the right husband."
"Of course I mean I won't marry until the proper man comes along. I should never make the mistake of blinding myself to such a man as—well, at least, or even Jimmy, for instance, though I'm not comparing Jimmy with him in any way."
"What's the matter with Smith?"
"Well, you would never think of him as a lover. He's so old and unromantic. Besides, his education's terribly defective."
"And he isn't rich," added her mother.
"When Beth married I hope it will be to a gentleman in the position to keep her as she ought to be kept."
"I wonder why Jimmy doesn't come around any more," said Beth. "He hasn't been here since Christmas."
"He says he's too busy," observed Mrs. Harris. "Captain, you must be working him to death."
"Smith's a good man, a cordial good man," replied the captain thoughtfully. "He's doing more work than any three. There isn't no necessity that I know of for him to work all night, though, if that's what he's doing."
Emma appeared to be absolutely indifferent to the turn the conversation had taken, though in truth she was listening greedily to Williams' encouragements.
"If you know," went on the captain, "I've often thought that a man like Smith would be just the right kind of a husband for Emma."
"Like Jimmy?" Mrs. Harris laughed. She did not know whether he was joking or not, but thought he was. This time a sudden flush dyed Emma's cheeks and deepened over her face to the very ears. No one noticed thought, it was impossible to tell where he was looking.

"That's what I said," he emphasized. "Take Smith himself, for the sake of argument. We're talking among ourselves, so it doesn't matter, as it won't go any further. Suppose Emma'd married him? Is his heart all right? Is he on the level? I'd bank on him, and that's more'n I'd say of any other man I know. Is he capable? Brains as they make 'em. Is he good looking? He ain't bad looking, and with that smile of his he has most good looks. I've seen beat a mile. Beth says he ain't poetic and all that sort of thing. Maybe—maybe, but what of that? Also she says he ain't what you'd call educated. That may be, too, but when he wants to he can bring an amount of cold sense to bear that'll upset most men's logic and give a bluff no chance. He'll go far if he keeps on, for all his slow ways, and let me tell you it ain't the man who starts off at top speed that always wins the race."
"What you say may be all true, but these qualities haven't made Jimmy rich so far, and I doubt if they ever will. A man can't have everything, but money, as I've often told my girls, makes up for a lot of shortcomings, and without it—what? Here's Emma, married for seven years, separated from her husband, can't get a divorce unless it's of the Dakota sort, which I'd never consent to, hasn't got a cent in the world and couldn't collect a cent of alimony if she had the right to it because the husband's a pauper."
"No, and if he were as wealthy as the grand Turk I'd strive to death before I'd touch any money or anything else belonging to him," commented Emma.
"Mrs. Harris," answered the captain, with deep feeling, "money, while it's a whole lot, ain't everything, as I've found, though it's taken me sixty-five years to do it. It's no fault of Emma's that she's poor, and I tell you that if she was to marry a man like Smith I'd settle $500,000 worth of Latin-American stock on her for a wedding present. I would, by Sam'man!"
"You would do that?" asked Mrs. Harris, overwhelmed with astonishment.
"This minute."
"Well!"
It was all she could find to say about the reiteration.
But if the family were amazed Williams was evidently alarmed at having allowed his feelings to get the better of his discretion in this way, for he lapsed into gloomy silence and very soon departed abruptly.

CHAPTER XXIV.
"MR. BROOKS would like to see you, Mr. I told him you were in, but he would not come up and asked me to let you know he was downstairs."
"Tell him it's all right. I'll see him."
"You mean that he's to come up?"
"Yes, if he doesn't mind."
The landlady went out, gathering from the visitor's unusual request and her boarder's reply that there had been trouble between them. Jimmy pushed away the book he had been reading and leaned back in his chair to await his former friend's coming.
Brooks shuffled rather than walked in. He did not offer to shake hands, but, with a subdued "Hello, Jimmy," seated himself on the edge of the armchair that in former days he occupied as his own. Then he seemed to forget where he was, sank back, shrinking into his overcoat, and sat as though stupefied, twisting his hat in his hands slowly and mechanically.
Smith was shocked at the change in his appearance. His face was white and thin, and the eyes, which were almost expressionless, were deep sunk in the sockets. There was stubble on his chin; his formerly neatly plastered hair was disheveled.
"Joy, you're ill," said Jimmy with concern. "Let me get a brace for you."
He rose and produced a decanter of whiskey, but his visitor declined, this time with a wan flickering smile of appreciation.
"No, thanks, Jimmy. I don't feel like it just now. I've been drinking too much of the stuff, and I haven't eaten since last night, I think."
"For heaven's sake!" exclaimed Jimmy.
Brooks would have restrained him, but he was out of the door and bounding downstairs three steps at a time. Brooks sank back into the chair and relapsed into his condition of helletude.
In a little while Smith returned, a plate heaped high with sandwiches in one hand and a bowl of hot bouillon in the other. Brooks refused the sandwiches, but he took the bowl, and, holding it in both hands—which trembled—sipped its grateful contents.
"Jimmy, you're awfully good," he sighed.
"Oh, no—none of that," protested Smith. "Tell me what brought you here. What can I do for you?"
"I don't know why I came, after the way I acted last time."
"Never mind that. Let's forget about it."
"No, I have no right here, Jimmy. I'm done for."
"How done for?"
"I am, and you'll kick me out, as I deserve, when you know, Jimmy, I've done it again. I'm a thief a second time."
Smith looked grave, but he said nothing.
"What! You don't get up and kick me? Well, well! I suppose it's just that!"

like you, but I rather hoped you wouldn't. You're the only man who wouldn't. But wait till you hear. I can tell it to you because you can't help me. No body can. I'm beyond helping."
"Better try a sandwich first," suggested Smith. "There's no hurry."
"Thanks; I think I will. That beef tea did me good."
He ate three sandwiches ravenously, washing them down with water.
"There isn't a whole lot to relate," he said. "You can fill in the details for yourself. I tried backing the ponies again; then I stole from the bank. There was an examination of the books at the bank four days ago. I didn't turn up there that day, and I haven't been there since; but, of course, the game is up. I wandered about, drinking to try to forget my troubles till all my money was gone. Then I sobered up, and here I am. This time there's no one to save me. The bank couldn't be fixed, even if I had the funds to make my stealings good. They'd get me wherever I hid myself, that's sure. They must be looking for me now. And, O God, I can't face it!"
Tears rolled down his face—tears that made no effort to hide or wipe away.
"I knew I was going headlong down to hell—knew what I was doing—saw the certain punishment—yet couldn't stop myself. And now I have reached the mouth of the pit!"
He slumped and writhed in agony of torment, turning his pitiful, streaming eyes upon Smith.
"Oh, Jimmy, if you would only kill me and end it all," he moaned. "Oh, if I only had the courage to kill myself!"
Smith, greatly agitated, looked at the miserable man in perplexity.
"I wish I could help you, Joe," he said. "But this time I don't see how you can be helped."
"It isn't possible. There's nothing you could do. I'm done for. It's my own fault," he sobbed. "I brought it all on myself. I have been weak—oh, weak—and a fool. And now it's come to this. No, nobody's to blame but myself—unless it's Emma."
He rose to go.
"Strike hands with me, Jimmy," he begged. "It's the hand of a thief, a criminal's hand, but you were glad to take it in friendship once, when it was honest, and it's the last time I'll ever ask you to do anything for me. You'll never see me again."
Smith grasped the hand held out to him, and his pressure was more eloquent of his feelings than mere words could have been. He could find no phrases adequate to express them, so remained silent, but he slipped into the wretched man's pocket, as Brooks passed out of the door a bundle of banknotes that he had taken without coupling from a drawer.

Minneapolis, Minn.—"I was a great sufferer from female troubles which caused a weakness and broken down condition of the system. I read so much of what Lydia E. ZELAYA IS NOW IN GREAT PERIL
U. S. TO DEMAND REPARATION FOR CANNON AND GROCE EXECUTIONS.
ULTIMATUM WILL BE SENT
Transport Buffalo to Sail at Once for Panama—Cruisers Dixie and Prairie Reported Preparing to Leave for Nicaragua.
Washington, Nov. 22.—Secretary of State Knox last night authorized the following statement after the conclusion of a conference with President Taft on the Nicaraguan situation:
"Certain representations of fact which have been made to the state department concerning the Groce and Cannon cases are verified by inquiries that have been made. This government will at once prepare a demand on the Nicaraguan government for reparation for the death of those two men."
The other event of importance that transpired during the day was the dispatch of orders to the transport Buffalo, on duty on the Pacific coast, to sail at once for Panama. The navy department's instructions to the commander of the Buffalo were clear and explicit, and the vessel was expected to set sail at once from Pichilingue Bay, Cal., after taking on adequate supplies of coal and provisions.
This ordering of the Buffalo south on a hurry-up schedule is taken to mean that this government is making ready to throw a column of United States marines into the Nicaraguan turmoil for the protection of American lives and property.
500 Marines in Canal Zone.
While the 500 marines are scattered generally over the canal zone they can be concentrated by means of the railroad quickly at Panama, where there are military stores and supplies.
Any expedition against Nicaragua in which the marines figure would be undertaken on the Pacific side of the isthmus. The Buffalo would land the men at the port of Corinto, which is a short forty miles from Managua. The authorities insist that the dispatch of the Buffalo is not to be accepted as meaning that an expedition is to be launched against the Zelaya government, but that the vessel is ordered south in order to be in readiness should occasion suddenly arise.
The Buffalo carries six guns, is of 6,888 ton burden and her engines develop 3,600 horsepower. The vessel will be driven at top speed to Panama, where on her arrival her commander has been instructed to report immediately to Washington.
Navy Yard Active.
Philadelphia, Nov. 22.—Active preparations are being made at the Philadelphia navy yard for the sailing of the cruisers Dixie and Prairie. The latter is expected to sail for Panama on Thanksgiving day with 400 marines. Rumors were current at the yard that both vessels are scheduled for Nicaragua, but the authorities could not confirm these reports.
Englishwomen's Orders.
Queen Alexandra is the only woman who has been made a knight, and even in her case there has never been any actual dubbing. No order to which women were eligible in England existed until 1862, when the order of Victoria and Albert was established. It is composed of four classes, only members of royal families being eligible to the first two. The third class are all peeresses, the fourth all ladies. The order was apparently confined to friends of Queen Victoria, and no appointments have been made in this reign. The order of the Crown of India is given to women who have been associated with work in India, either themselves or through their husbands.
